Something Nice To Say

JUST ROSES: Guns 'N Roses' Slash, who cultivates an image of being the baddest of the bad boys (although he'll never beat out Axl Rose, who hasn't learned basic toilet-training techniques), may be getting too civilized for the business. At Woodstock backstage, he acted "like an angel," says one source. "He posed with all the 'Peace Patrol' who asked, and couldn't have been nicer." Then on Monday night, he hung out backstage at the Stones concert, and yes — "played with Mick's kids and Ron Wood's kids the whole night," says a witness to it all. What's that world coming to?...

THREE'S A CROWD: Here's proof that BMG has more money than they know what to do with. They've just signed the little sister of "Full House" twins Mary-Kate and Ashley Olsen — Lizzie Olsen — and made her part of the girls' multi-million-dollar video deal. Lizzie will make her acting debut in "The Adventures of Mary-Kate and Ashley" home-video musical mystery series, in which the girls play the Trenchcoat Twins who solve crimes before dinner. If their mother keeps getting pregnant she'll be able to pay the national debt....

AGAINST THE LAW: At least one of the actors involved in "L.A. Law" didn't like what Paul Sorvino told us about his finally being set free from the hit NBC series. Jerry Orbach was miffed that Sorvino was tired of saying, "Who did you see coming out of the coffee shop." Says Jerry: "That's where the real acting comes in." An NBC spokeswoman also called to tell us the show is attracting considerable talent. "I mean Chris Noth is from the Yale School of Drama and Sam Waterston is joining us next season," she said. Personally, we love this show, but then we don't have to work in 15 below temperatures. And they don't have to put up with the letters we get.
